Forming a company

Future proof IP structuring

An internationally acclaimed centre of business excellence, the Isle of Man offers entrepreneurs a number of corporate options with which to secure their business interests.

The Isle of Man prides itself on the stability of its business community, and the excellent working relationships developed between all facets of government and the private sector. Island entrepreneurs enjoy a fast paced, creative commercial environment, grounded in one of the world's best established business centres.

If you have decided to protect yourself and your assets, the Isle of Man has a wider and more flexible range of corporate structures than might be available in the UK. For instance an IOM Company does not have to file public accounts and more flexible legal requirements to assist corporate restructuring are available.

Protected Cell Companies

A PCC represents a single legal entity or standard limited company whose assets are segregated and protected within one or an unlimited number of cells. Cells are legally independent and the revenue streams, assets and liabilities of each are ring fenced from all other cells and the core company.

Each cell also has a straightforward exit procedure, holds its own assets and its own shareholders, allowing for sole or multiple ownership structures per cell.

A PCC can also:

- Hold its own assets
- Carry on its own business
- Enter into contracts
- Have its own shareholders – ideal vehicle for joint ventures
- Cell ownership and accounts are not on public record
- Formed quickly by a resolution of the PCC – no need to form a separate subsidiary for every new invention
- Be converted into a limited company, if required.

PCCs can be owned and managed by Invention Box Limited, or you can have your own. Every Protected Cell Company is protected under Isle of Man companies legislation.
